

We've made it through Week 1 of school closure. We hope you all are well!

Remote learning for students

Little Miami teachers and administrators have been working on a plan to send remote learning opportunities to students using Schoology, email, and other classroom specific electronic communication. Beginning Monday, March 23, teachers will be communicating optional learning opportunities for all grades.

Please contact your building principal if you do not have internet access or an electronic device for school work so that we can provide you with hard copies of learning materials. Additional resources, including a few printables, are available at LittleMiamiSchools.com/Resources. Log-in links for Schoology and ProgressBook are posted right on our homepage.

Little Miami is also developing a technology customer support system to help with district-provided devices for students in grades 7-12. More information on this will be coming. Check our website LittleMiamiSchools.com regularly for updates.

Board of Education to live stream meeting March 24

The Little Miami Board of Education will hold an abbreviated version of its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, March 24 at 7 p.m. at central office. Because of the Governor's limitations on gatherings, the district will livestream the meeting on Facebook Live. Individuals not required to be at the meeting are asked to view the livestream from home.

Food services for families in need

Little Miami Food Services will begin serving grab-and-go meals to any student in need beginning Tuesday, March 24.
